SUMMARY

"On Sunday, cities around the world commemorated the World Day of Remembrance for Road Traffic Victims. In New York, hundreds of us rode bikes to the spot on the Hudson River Greenway where cyclists and pedestrians were attacked last month. We hosted a massive rally at City Hall, joining hands to encircle City Hall with a giant zero. It was such a powerful demonstration of community, resolve, and resilience. Whether you were there on Sunday, or followed along online, thank you."
